I'm in the Strategic Planning department & Green Finance Research Institute. I conduct research on climate change, environmental protection and sustainable finance. We write book series on green finance development in different Chinese provinces, organize seminars, and regularly produce research reports. Besides research, I also edit and distribute sustainable finance news within our banking group.

I worked in a team to digitalize thousands of gazetteers at the Harvard-Yenching Library. We scanned thousands of book pages that contain data tables, extracted the data, and cleaned and organized the data with Python for economic research. I also presented an analysis of the population and education data in a seminar.
